The Caveats

This Guide represents the services purchased and provided through the Dane County Department of Human Services at a particular point in time. Any omissions are unintentional. Due to the evolving nature of funding, contracts, and changes in personnel these are only accurate for this moment and are subject to change.

Every effort has been made to identify acronyms by spelling them out the first time they occur.

Any typos or grammatical issues rest solely with the primary author.

Arrangement

Program No.:
Address: 1202 Northport DR
Madison, WI 53704

Contract Term: - Contract Amount: $
Estimated Clients: (Note, these are subject to change based on budget adjustments.)

Description:

Joining Forces for Families (JFF) is a voluntary, community-based, supportive service that helps families address their basic human needs. By quickly linking clients to resources, JFF often keeps families stable and deflects them away from costly formal system interventions.

The JFF program encourages cooperation between agencies in caring for families. JFF uses the combined talents and resources of the Dane County Human Services Department, public health, county and local law enforcement agencies, school districts, human services organizations, and residents to support the success of children, youth and families in home, school and the community. JFF core teams are generally comprised of a law enforcement officer, public health nurse, a county community social worker, school personnel and a community support specialist (at some locations). The broader JFF collaborative networks that form are based upon the local context and can consist of a number of different stakeholders such as citizen members, service provider personnel (e.g., Headstart, CAC), probation and parole, clergy and others. JFF teams and collaborative networks have office locations in a variety of settings in the neighborhoods and communities they serve.

Most JFF teams work with the community in two different ways. First, they work collaboratively to address the needs of families and children who come to their attention. They also respond to basic needs (e.g., food, clothing, shelter, housing, transportation) or to more comprehensive personal and family needs (e.g., child and family matters, mental health or AODA issues). Secondly, JFF teams and their collaborative networks work to support efforts to make their community a safer, healthier place to live. That may mean supporting a job fair at the local neighborhood center, conducting outreach for a immunization clinic, implementing a back-to-school event to register and equip students for school or holding local meetings to problem-solve around drug problems and safety.

JFF teams and their members also communicate with their respective organizations and other funding sources (i.e., the County; the City of Madison; United Way, and other cities, villages and towns, school districts) to identify local resource needs and ways service delivery can be improved. Offices are located at 9 sites in Madison and 7 rural areas of Dane County.
